grunts his own words. "As I sat in my chair I could hear my heart thumping as if somebody were prancing me on the back."

This showed that the heart had too much work on hand and was straining under it like a horse trying to carry two men. "I got up little sleep at night," he says, "and when I awoke I used to feel as though I had the 'heat.' This sort of thing is very annoying, and we are not surprised to learn that he lost flesh until little was left of him but skin and bone. "My cheeks," he says, "sank in until they were almost drawn together, and people shook their heads and predicted that my time in this world was nearly up. I had a general feeling of depression and loathing on taking his medicine. From first to last I took some forty or fifty bottles of it of all kinds without benefit."

"Finally one day the doctor sounded my lungs and asked me if any of our family had died of consumption. He said that I was not the only one who had been dying. Then he said I had better take further advice, so he could do no more for me. This was after nine months of his treatment. I gave up all hopes of getting better, and indeed, no one expected me."

"It was now winter again, December, 1891. One day I found a little book in my pamphlet in the pocket of my coat which had been given to me by a relation called Mother Seigel's Syrup. It was a valuable case. Mother Seigel's Syrup had never failed me before. Since having been cured by it, without going into all my hopes and fears at the point, it is enough to say that I got a bottle from Mr. Kirkman, Chemist, Ellerby Lane. I took the contents of that bottle and certainly felt a great deal better. I had a new hope, a real friend which cheered me on."

"After this I never looked behind me, though my recovery was a work of time. For I was very much reduced. I stuck to the medicine, and with good reason, and at last got back to my work, strong and well, and have remained as ever since. I am still well to this day, and am grateful to God for what had brought the wonderful change. I answered, 'Mother Seigel's Syrup had brought it.' When I said I wished to start work they told me I must first be examined by a doctor. The doctor said it was fit for work and I went to work the next morning and have never lost a day since."

"I wish others to know what Seigel's Syrup has done for me, and I give the proprietors permission to publish this brief account of my case. I am a small trader by trade and have worked at Messrs. Newthorpe & Sons, Clay Pit Lane, for four years. I have Ascor, 2, Bad Timber, 2, and a few others."

"The doctor was right in saying that the apparent heart trouble in Mr. Ascor's case arose from dyspepsia, for dyspepsia was his only ailment. And if he had used Mother Seigel's Syrup in February, 1890, he would have had no pain to feel, for he would have been all right directly. As it is we are glad that after he did try the he had no relapse. He never looked back."
